Summary

As a third-year Ph.D. candidate in Computer Science at City University of Hong Kong, my expertise lies in image segmentation and continual learning. My deep interest in artificial intelligence fuels my ambition to make impactful contributions to the field. I believe in my innovative spirit to drive technological advancements and possess the necessary development skills to achieve these goals. I am actively seeking research internship opportunities in artificial intelligence, with a keen interest in computer vision. Should your company offer relevant positions, I welcome the opportunity to discuss how I can contribute to your team.
